Subject: EOCCG Update 6: Planned Truck Demonstration

Good morning,

We continue to see signs that the crowds are thinning, but there is still a large amount of vehicles in the core. There are very few people on Parliament Hill and Wellington Street. There were no reports of significant disturbances overnight. There are a few smaller convoys moving around the downtown core and outside the perimeter, but the disruptions have been minimal.

While the situation remains fluid, there are signs that the remaining protesters are generally cooperative, including some headway made by the Police Liaison Teams to restrict the use of vehicle horns overnight. Today, the focus continues to be on traffic management/reducing gridlock, while maintaining public safety. There are no known plans for demonstrations or speeches today.

A plan to release the use of the City's heavy trucks is currently being finalized. We anticipate that by mid-day today, we will have a better sense of on-going City service impacts; another PSA will be released on that this afternoon.

A briefing to Councillors is being arranged for tomorrow (Wednesday, February 2) at 2:00 pm. It will be led by Ottawa Police Service with support from the City. The details are being finalized and invites to Councillors have not been sent.

We will update you further later in the day.
